

Funeral Information
and Professional Service Fees

Chelsea Funeral Directors have been established for over 130 years, and are the oldest family-run funeral directors in the region. Our priority is to reassure and support the families that come to us, and as members of The National Society of Allied and Independent Funeral Directors (SAIF), you can be sure we will uphold the highest standards in line with an industry-leading code of practice.

We offer bespoke funeral services, so that you are able to create a personal and moving tribute to your loved one. As a long established funeral service company, our team strives to be professional and understanding, offering a full advisory service for burial or cremations, and will organise anything from a simple service to a traditional personalised funeral. You can be as involved in the process as you wish, whether you would like to take care of everything or whether you want to oversee the personal touches yourself.

By upholding traditional religious and non-religious services, or more modern services, we provide everyone that comes to us with a respectful, bespoke service. Our belief is that a funeral service should be meaningful and special, and we are proud to offer a range of more unique options such as eco-funerals, or burials at sea, so you can personalise your loved one's service.

Chelsea Funeral Directors are one of the last remaining independent funeral directors in London, and we have premises in Chelsea, Westminster, and Fulham. We are available 24 hours a day, every day of the year, to ensure that you can depend on us. Contact us in your time of need to receive personal attention and an understanding service.

What to do when someone dies at home

- Contact the registered GP of the deceased to request verification.
- Out of normal working hours you may be directed to the out of hours GP.
- A doctor may visit to verify the death. In some cases they may be able to issue the Medical Certificate of Cause of Death (MCCD). If not, you will need to contact the doctors' surgery to get this.
- If the doctor cannot issue the MCCD they may need to inform the police and coroner. There is nothing to worry about if this happens.
- If there is any uncertainty, please dial 999 for an ambulance.

What to do when someone dies at a nursing home or in hospital

- If you are not present at the time of death, you will be notified by a member of staff or duty doctor.
- A doctor will issue a Medical Certificate of Cause of Death (MCCD).
- If the doctor cannot issue the MCCD they may need to inform the police and coroner. There is nothing to worry about if this happens.
- A hospital may issue you with a 'Release Form' to give to your chosen funeral director.

Registering the death

- A death must be registered within 5 days at the Register Office nearest to where the person died.
- The MCCD will be sent to the registrar by email.
- A near relative to the deceased should register the death.
- If a near relative is not available, then you can do it if you:
 - Were present at the time of death,
 - Are an administrator from the hospital (if the person died in hospital),
 - Are in charge of making the funeral arrangements.
- The person registering the death will require the following information if you have access to it:
 - Full Name and Address (and maiden name if applicable)
 - Date and place of death
 - Date and place of birth
 - National Insurance number
 - Driving licence number
 - Occupation
 - Details of any pension or allowance from public funds
 - Name, address and date of birth of next of kin
 - Name, address and contact details of 'executor' or 'administrator'

The registrar will issue your funeral director with the Green Form (Registrar's Certificate for Burial and Cremation). You will be able to purchase copies of the Death Certificate.

Note: If you are unable to attend the Register Office that covers the area where the death took place, you may be able to register at your local office by declaration. Please note that this can slow down funeral arrangements.

Death abroad or another part of the country

If someone dies abroad or in another part of the country, please contact us directly for specific advice.

'Tell us once' service

Tell Us Once is a service that lets you report the death to most government organisations in one go.

When you register the death the registrar will:

- Let you know if the service is available in your area.
- Give you the telephone number for the service.
- Give you a unique reference to use the service online, or by phone.

The Coroner

The main duty of the Coroner is to:

- Investigate all sudden and unexpected deaths.
- Give permission to remove the deceased out of England and Wales.
- Decide what action is necessary after the initial investigation.
- (If necessary), arrange a post-mortem to establish the facts surrounding the death.

The Will

- The Executor(s) named in a Will, or the next of kin, is responsible for arranging the funeral.
- The Will may give instructions for the funeral, but the Executor(s) is not bound by this.
- The Executor(s) is responsible for looking after the funeral account.

Funeral Expenses and the bank

Chelsea Funeral Directors may send a funeral invoice directly to a bank account in the name of the deceased. This can be in full or part payment of the funeral invoice. You should discuss this with your funeral arranger.
